Cash and Cash Equivalents Policies [Text Block]	Cash and cash equivalents include cash on hand, demand deposits with banks, and short-term investments with maturities of three months or less from the date of acquisition. The company's policy is to maintain a minimum level of cash and cash equivalents necessary to meet its operating requirements.
Receivables Policies [Text Block]	Accounts receivable represent amounts due from customers for goods sold or services provided in the ordinary course of business. The company's policy is to extend credit to customers based on their creditworthiness and payment history. Credit is granted after an assessment of the customer's financial position, including their credit score, payment history, and outstanding debts. The company regularly reviews its accounts receivable balances to identify any overdue or potentially uncollectable accounts. The company maintains an allowance for doubtful accounts to provide for estimated losses that may arise from the inability of customers to make payments. The company also employs various collection methods to manage its accounts receivable, including sending reminder notices, making phone calls, and engaging collection agencies or attorneys in extreme cases. The company monitors the aging of its receivables to ensure timely collection and minimize the risk of bad debts.
Inventories Policies [Text Block]	Inventories consist of raw materials, work in progress, and finished goods held for sale in the ordinary course of business. The company's policy is to value inventories at the lower of cost or net realizable value. Cost is determined using the weighted-average method. The company regularly reviews its inventory levels to identify any slow-moving or obsolete items. The company maintains an allowance for inventory obsolescence to provide for estimated losses that may arise from the inability to sell inventory at its original cost. The company also employs various inventory management techniques to minimize the risk of obsolescence and ensure efficient use of inventory. These techniques include maintaining safety stock levels, implementing just-in-time inventory systems, and monitoring inventory turnover ratios.

Concept [Aspect]	Period [Aspect]
	2022-01-01 2022-12-31
Property, Plant, and Equipment Policies [Text Block]	Property, plant, and equipment represent tangible assets used in the production or supply of goods and services. The company's policy is to value property, plant, and equipment at cost less accumulated depreciation. The cost includes the purchase price, direct costs incurred to bring the asset to its working condition, and any other costs directly attributable to the acquisition of the asset. Depreciation is recognized on a straight-line basis over the estimated useful life of the asset. The estimated useful life and residual value of each asset are reviewed annually, and any changes are reflected in the depreciation expense going forward. The company performs regular maintenance on its property, plant, and equipment to ensure that they are in good working condition and to extend their useful lives. The company also periodically reviews the carrying value of its property, plant, and equipment to identify any impairment losses that may arise from changes in market conditions, technological advancements, or other factors.
Accounts Payable Policies [Text Block]	Accounts payable represent amounts owed to suppliers and vendors for goods and services received in the ordinary course of business. The company's policy is to pay its trade payables in accordance with the payment terms negotiated with its suppliers. The company regularly reviews its accounts payable balances to ensure that they are accurate and up-to-date. The company maintains a strong internal control system to prevent any unauthorized payments or fraudulent activities. The company also implements a system of approval and verification procedures for all invoices before payment is made. This system ensures that all invoices are legitimate and that the goods or services have been received in accordance with the purchase order and contract terms.
Long-term Debt Policies [Text Block]	Long-term debt represents borrowings that have a maturity of more than one year from the balance sheet date. The company's policy is to maintain an appropriate level of long-term debt to fund its operations and growth initiatives while minimizing its overall cost of capital. The company considers various factors, including interest rates, credit ratings, and covenants, when selecting its long-term debt instruments. The company also regularly reviews its debt portfolio to assess the overall risk profile and refinancing needs. The company maintains a strong debt service coverage ratio to ensure that it can meet its interest and principal payments as they come due. The company also maintains compliance with all covenants and other terms and conditions of its long-term debt agreements. The company discloses all material terms and conditions of its long-term debt agreements in its financial statements, including the interest rate, maturity date, collateral, and any restrictive covenants. The company also discloses any events or conditions that may trigger a default or accelerate the repayment of its long-term debt.

	2022-01-01 2022-12-31
Revenue Recognition Policies [Text Block]	Revenue represents the gross amount of consideration received or receivable for goods sold or services rendered in the ordinary course of business. The company recognizes revenue in accordance with the principles of the accounting standard ASC 606, Revenue from Contracts with Customers. The company recognizes revenue when it has transferred control of goods or services to the customer, and the amount of revenue recognized reflects the consideration to which the company expects to be entitled in exchange for those goods or services. The company applies a five-step model to recognize revenue under ASC 606, including identifying the contract with the customer, identifying the performance obligations, determining the transaction price, allocating the transaction price to the performance obligations, and recognizing revenue when the performance obligations are satisfied. The company assesses the collectibility of its accounts receivable and recognizes a provision for bad debts to reflect estimated losses that may arise from the inability of customers to make payments. The company discloses all material information about its revenue recognition policies, including the significant judgments and estimates used in determining the transaction price and allocating it to the performance obligations. The company also discloses any significant changes to its revenue recognition policies or methods.
